Art Unit: 3736

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-3, 6-9, 12-14, 17-20, 23-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Carter et al (5,036,858).

Carter et al teaches a device and method for acoustically stimulating the brain having a programmable signal generator (24) that generates two acoustical signals, a user interface (48) to adjust the parameters, including the frequency and volume and first and second ear pieces that (32 and 36) for stimulating the brain into a desired state. Carter et al teaches (column 1, lines 10-29) using different frequencies between 1 hertz and 10 hertz for treating problems such as trouble learning or sleeping problems.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 4-5, 15-16 and 27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Carter et al in view of Masaki (4,834,701).

Carter et al discloses the claimed device except for specifically showing the use of sine waves. Masaki discloses a similar device that produces two different signals that are delivered to a person's ears to stimulate the brain and teaches that it is well known to use sine waves as the acoustical signals. Therefore a modification of Carter et al such that the signals used are sine waves or forms of sine waves would have been obvious since Masaki shows that sine waves are routinely used as acoustical signals to stimulate the brain.

5. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

6. Claims 9 and 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 9 and 20 appear to be directed to the intended use of the device and fail to provide and further limitations to the apparatus.

7. Claims 10-11 and 21-22 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

8. The information disclosure statement filed 08/29/03 fails to comply with 37 CFR 1.98(a)(1), which requires the following: (1) a list of all patents, publications, applications, or other information submitted for consideration by the Office; (2) U.S. patents and U.S. patent application publications listed in a section separately from citations of other documents; (3) the application number of the application in which the information disclosure statement is being submitted on each page of the list; (4) a column that provides a blank space next to each document to be considered, for the examiner's initials; and (5) a heading that clearly indicates that the list is an information disclosure statement. The information disclosure statement has been placed in the application file, but the information referred to therein has not been considered.

With regard to the above information disclosure statement it appears that there is only 1 page while it is indicated that there are 2 pages. The page listing the Foreign Patent Documents and Other Art appears to be missing.

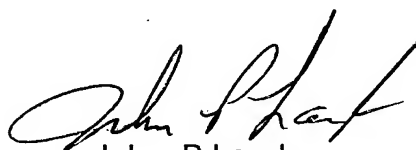

9. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Wilson et al is cited to further show the state of the art.
